CONSIDER SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS

HOOVER CONFERS WITH COOLIDGE ON FLOOD AID

FUNDS FOR RELIEF WORK BEING RAPIDLY DEPLETED

COOLIDGE MAY SUMMON SPECIAL SESSION ABOUT OCT. 15

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Custer, S. D., July 20.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover was met at the railroad station today by President Coolidge when the commerce department head arrived for a conference with the president on the advisability of calling a special session of congress in October for Mississippi river flood relief.

While Hoover declined to discuss the subject before talking the matter over with Mr. Coolidge, it was indicated he favored the extra session.

He indicated he believed the funds now available for relief work may not last after November 15.

Mr. Coolidge's unprecedented step in coming to the train prevented Hoover from talking with newspapermen, but his sentiments concerning the extra session were made known through his secretary, George Atkinson.

The regular session of congress does not open until early in December and some friends of the president have made it known that he intended to summon an extra session about October 15.

Mr. Coolidge always has said he had an open mind on the subject.

It is expected that Hoover's conferences with the chief executive here may result in some definite White House pronouncement regarding the extra session.

Hoover came here after traveling through the south since April 22. He will leave for San Francisco tomorrow.

40 FOOT HUMPBACK WHALE CAUGHT IN SALMON TRAP

Wrangell, Alaska, July 20.—(UP)—An unfortunate 40-foot humpback whale, caught in a salmon trap at Point Colpoys, Prince of Wales island, was destined for the oil refineries today.

The whale was jammed in the trap where he lived for five days despite a trap watchman's efforts to kill it with a rifle.

"Some poor marksmanship and ignorance of the whale's anatomy kept him alive for five days," the watchman notified his offices here.

"I finally had to use dynamite," he added.

It is believed the whale was lost from tow by small boats going to the fertilizer plant at Petersburg. This is the first time on record that a whale has been caught in such a trap, veteran salmon men said.

Few salmon are being caught in this district although the season is well advanced. Bureau of fisheries counters at Pan Creek, famous early salmon stream, reported a total of 2,500, while the catch should amount to more than 100,000 at this time of the year.

WIFE OF DETROIT BANKER TO CHRISTEN NEW MONOPLANE

Brunswick, Ga., July 20.—(UP)—Mrs. Eugene Lewis, wife of a Detroit banker, was on her way today from her summer home here to Detroit, Mich., to christen the monoplane "Port of Brunswick" in which Paul R. Redfern, Savannah, Ga., aviator, hopes to fly from here to Rio De Janeiro.

Preparations were speeded up today, following word received by the local committee in charge of flight plans, that Redfern might hop off from Detroit within a week on a nonstop flight to Brunswick.

A large hangar is under construction on Glynn Island, eight miles from here, and a runway leading to the beach is being scraped.

The wide, hard packed beach of the island will be used for the take-off of the Stinson monoplane.

Word from Redfern has indicated he hopes to start his nonstop flight attempt to the capital of Brazil some time between Aug. 1 and 10.

HAILSTONES AS BIG AS BASEBALLS FALL IN CALGARY

Calgary, Alberta, July 20.—(UP)—Hailstones as large as baseballs fell during a storm late yesterday, and in the vicinity of Cochrane, near here, piled to the depth of more than a foot along highway fences, it was learned when communication was restored with the storm stricken area today. Crops near Ghost River were laid flat by the storm which cut a swath through a territory a mile wide.

LURID TALE COMES FROM THE SEAS

STORY OF MURDER OF A SHIP BECALMED, FIRST MATE DEAD

AUTHORITIES SEEK TO UNRAVEL STRANGE TANGLE OF EVENTS

New York, July 20.—(UP)—This is a story of murder on the high seas, of a ship becalmed and its first mate dead; a tale which could come only from the sea, from the brain of a novelist or from the movies.

It most certainly comes from some one of those three places and today a tug was off Sandy Hook trying to find out which one it is.

The story came to the coast guard and to the office of the United States attorney.

The schooner Kingsway, a trader which cruises the coast of Africa, is the ship involved. It sails out of Perth Amboy, N. J.

No one thought much of the ship until a few days ago word came to the coast guard that a trader had put in at Monrovia, Liberia, weeks ago, telling a story of speaking to the Kingsway and learning that a man aboard had gone wild, had killed a woman, had been cast into the dungeon and had broken out again.

It wasn't clear who the woman was, nor was it clear who the killer might have been.

The trader pictured the ship becalmed beneath the tropic sun, the murderer wandering the decks defying all attempts to capture him and the crew muttering and dissatisfied.

Then a few days ago a cable from the American consul at the Barbados drifted in. It told of the Kingsway putting in there to report its mate was dead and he could not be replaced.

The coast guard and the U. S. attorney decided they should act on the reports and when the ship was sighted off Barnegat Light yesterday a tug was ordered out to bring her into port and unravel from the strange tangle just what had happened.

"We don't know what this all can be about," the district attorney's office said. "It is a weird story and it has come to us from strange places and with details vague."

"So we propose to meet the ship at quarantine with a force of eight or ten men, and we will be ready to cope with any situation that we find."

"Maybe we won't find any."

Officers couldn't quite explain why the reports should be so vague and it seemed peculiar to them that aboard such a seasoned trader as the Kingsway, with its crew of old time sailing men, there was no strong hand to cope with such a situation.

"It doesn't seem, according to the traditions of the sea, safe to let lunatics and murderous maniacs have the run of the quarter deck, seamen admitted."

FUNERAL RITES FOR TWO BOYS DROWNED AT ANOKA

Anoka, Minn., July 20.—(UP)—Funeral arrangements were being made today for two boys who drowned in Rum river here late Tuesday.

Efforts to revive one of the victims by a rescue crew failed.

The victims were Joseph Meyer, 6, and Arthur Johnson, 7, both of Anoka.

British Body at Naval Armaments Parley Is Recalled to London, Gloom Now Prevailing

MANEUVER SEEMS TINGED WITH POLITICS

ONLY REAR ADMIRAL FIELD REMAINS IN GENEVA TODAY

CRUISER TONNAGE AND SIZE OF GUNS STUMBLING BLOCKS

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, July 20.—The recall to London of the British delegation at the naval armaments conference was viewed in some quarters today as a diplomatic maneuver to compel the United States to accept the British proposals on cruiser tonnage and size of guns or permit the conference to end in failure.

Only Admiral Frederick Field, British naval adviser, remained in Geneva. He is ill, and it was believed that only his condition prevented him from accompanying W. C. Bridgeman, Viscount Cecil, and Captain Egerton when they left last night for London.

Bridgeman insisted just before he left that the recall was merely to report fully to the admiralty and the cabinet and perhaps to receive new instructions. However, Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, was visibly disappointed when he emerged last night after a call on Bridgeman.

Despite the gloom and in the face of denials at Washington and here that a tentative agreement had been reached, reports persisted today that a compromise agreement of some sort was in prospect.

The compromise, it was understood, envisaged the conditional acceptance by all three powers at the conference of a total tonnage of 625,000 each for the United States and Great Britain and 400,000 for Japan. Twenty-five per cent of that quota, however, would be made up of obsolete ships.

In other words, excluding the obsolete vessels, Great Britain and the United States would each be allowed a "visible tonnage" of half a million and Japan 325,000, and an "invisible tonnage" of obsolete vessels for the remainder. The obsolete vessels would be intended only for defensive purposes.

Some believed that the British delegation was recalled to London to discuss the new proposal with the British admiralty and cabinet.

Even if such a compromise agreement has been reached, several vital problems remained to be settled before the conference can be called a success. They included two questions on which the United States and Great Britain are thus far as far apart as ever: the size of guns for cruisers and the number of 10,000 ton cruisers.

The British delegation was expected to be away for the remainder of the week. During its absence, the United States and Japanese delegates will mark time, as any agreement between the two powers without Britain's approval would be meaningless.

The Japanese, in a statement to the press, said they would accept any compromise favorable both to Great Britain and the United States.

GUNNER'S MATE ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Ashland, Wis., July 20.—(UP)—John Quinn, gunner's mate on the U. S. S. Paducah, is at a hospital here today in a serious condition from a bullet wound near the heart.

Quinn and Paul Greene, motor-cycle policeman of Minneapolis, were shot when George Hensler, Minneapolis police sergeant, accidentally discharged a pistol, Tuesday night.

Greene was shot in the leg but his injury was not considered serious.

The accident occurred aboard the Paducah which is on a cruise of Ashland and Bayfield. The two Minneapolis police force members were on the training cruise as naval reservists.

MAY CHANGE PERSONNEL OF SCHOOL BOARD

Superior, Wis., July 20.—(UP)—Change in the personnel of Superior's school administration was expected today following the special election here Tuesday.

The first school board under provisions of the new law substituting an elective board for the one selected by the mayor was elected.

The only member of the appointive board elected Tuesday was Arthur Westlund.

The special election was the outgrowth of the recent Superior high school strike.

CAPT. COURTNEY DELAYED IN HIS OCEAN FLIGHT

POORLY FUNCTIONING WIRELESS APPARATUS AT FAULT

BRITISH COMMERCIAL AIR PILOT SEEKS TO FLY FROM ENGLAND TO NEW YORK

Calshot, Airdrome, Southampton, England, July 20.—(UP)—A poorly functioning wireless apparatus today prevented Captain Frank T. Courtney, British commercial air pilot, from starting his proposed flight to New York.

The take-off had been scheduled for noon today but a test flight at 8 A. M. disclosed a defective wireless and the necessity of engine adjustments.

"I am unable to start today," Courtney told the United Press. "Perhaps I may go tomorrow."

The British flier will take with him two companions. Flight Lieut. P. W. M. Downer will be relief pilot, and R. F. Little will be taken along as engineer.

Plans call for two stops to refuel, the first at Valentia, Ireland, and the second 1900 miles across the Atlantic near St. John's, Newfoundland.

M. S. TYLER, 81, SAYS HE WROTE CULT BOOKS

"THE KEY TO THE HOUSE OF DAVID" AND "FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY"

STATE SAYS THEY TAUGHT THE PRACTICE OF PERJURY TO DISCIPLES

St. Joseph, Mich., July 20.—(UP)—M. S. Tyler, 81, assumed all responsibility for the two books, "The Key to the House of David," and "For War Purposes Only," which the state in the cult's dissolution hearing contends taught the practice of perjury to the disciples.

"I wrote them both," Tyler, oldest living member of the colony, testified for the defense. "King Ben had nothing to do with them. I wrote and edited them both."

Tyler said he understood the books were distributed but later collected and destroyed because of a typographical error. He vigorously denied the assertion of the state's attorney that the books were instructions in case of investigation.

Tyler followed William Wright, 61, who said "King" Ben had never been surrounded by young girls in Shiloh.

"All the girls working in Shiloh were over 30 years of age," Wright said.

On cross examination, however, Wright admitted that some of the girls were "young and beautiful."

SERIOUS CHARGE BROUGHT AGAINST AN ARMY MAN

MINNEAPOLIS MAN IN GUARD HOUSE AT CAMP DEVINS, MASS.

GIRL FOUND BADLY BEATEN ABOUT HEAD AND UNCONSCIOUS

Camp Devins, Mass., July 20.—(UP)—A 19-year-old Lynn girl was in a critical condition at the Army hospital today and a soldier was in the guard house charged with felonious assault.

The girl, Miss Pearl Agarkis, was found yesterday by two soldiers near a vacant house not far from the camp. She appeared to have been badly beaten about the head and was unconscious. She was taken to the camp hospital where she recovered consciousness long enough to say:

"Don't tell my mother, Jimmy Farnsworth did it. I love him still."

Private James Farnsworth, 22, of Minneapolis, Minn., an instructor at the Citizens Military Training camp, was arrested. An examination of effects by Provost Marshal Lieut. F. M. Flanagan revealed blood-stains on the cuff of a shirt.

Farnsworth's story was that about 11 o'clock Monday night the girl, with whom he had been friendly, called for him at the barracks. He sent word that he was in bed but got up after Miss Agarkis had returned word that it was imperative she see him.

She told Farnsworth she had been brought to the camp by her employer, a Lynn man. Farnsworth took her to a hotel where he told her to stay at a hotel or take the train home, he said. The soldier said he then returned to camp and went to bed.

Miss Agarkis' told army officers she had been with Farnsworth on the night in question and that he had suddenly attacked her and left her under the vacant house near which she was found.

Major James Stevens, executive officer of the camp, was investigating the case.

ARMY FLIERS RETURN HOME

Dayton, O., July 20.—(UP)—Lieutenants Lester Maitland and Albert Hegenberg came home to the air service at McCook Field today from their trans-Pacific flight to Hawaii.

The two aviators who not many weeks ago took off secretly from McCook Field on the first leg of their historic adventure, arrived from Chicago shortly before 3 o'clock in a giant Fokker plane.

Dense crowds which gathered to welcome the fliers to their home field were held in check by police lines as the plane came to rest safely at McCook Field.

'PEACE BRIDGE' BREWERY PLANNED

Bridgeburgh, Ont., July 20.—(UP)—Plans for a $1,000,000 "peace bridge" brewery here were made public today. Daniel Sutter, of Pittsburgh, is interested in the venture. He has been named superintendent of the Copeland Brewery in Toronto.

COURT CONVENES ON COUNTRY ROAD TO AVOID MOB

Emporia, Kan., July 20.—(UP)—To avoid any possibility of mob violence, court was convened on a country road near here, when James Moore, an Alabama negro, was tried and found guilty on charges of assaulting a white woman here two weeks ago. He was sentenced to 21 years in prison.

STORM SWEEPS FORMOSA AND 16 PEOPLE KILLED

Taihorkua, Formosa, July 20.—(UP)—Sixteen persons have been killed and a hundred injured by the storm that is now sweeping southern Formosa. The storm began Saturday and has not slackened. Some of the island's richest sugar districts have been devastated and it is estimated the Formosa sugar crop has been damaged 15 per cent.

SCHOOL TEACHER PLANS TO FLY TO HAWAII

"I WANT TO DO SOMETHING DIFFERENT," SAYS MISS MILDRED DORAN

WANTS TO BE FIRST WOMAN TO FLY TO HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Long Beach, Cal., July 20.—(UP)—"I desire to do something different," and "to be the first woman to do it" is the chief motive behind the proposed Hawaiian flight of Miss Mildred Doran, 22-year-old school teacher of Flint, Mich., she said today.

Miss Doran, with her pilot, Augie Pedlar, and her financial backer, William F. Malloska, arrived here late yesterday in the biplane in which she hopes to make the flight.

They arrived in a little less than three hours from Tucson, Ariz., the last stop on their flight from Flint to Long Beach.

"I really have no desire to enter the movies," Miss Doran said, but she would like to win the $25,000 Dole prize for a non-stop flight to Hawaii, she added.

"Our plane is perfect and I think it will be the fastest one in the race. It has a cruising speed of 120 miles an hour, so I think we should be first across."

"We will be the first off on August 12," she added. August 12 is the date contestants for the Dole prize are to start.

"Even if Augie and I don't pick up first money, I will be the first woman ever to make a trip like that."

"I really am tickled to pieces to be here," she said, "and I haven't the slightest misgivings about the coming jaunt to Hawaii."

FIREMEN AND GIRL PHONE OPERATORS BORROWING MONEY

Washington, July 20.—(UP)—Firemen and girl telephone operators stand at the top among borrowers of money.

Along with them, among the men, are clerical workers, skilled artisans, and unskilled workers, and among the women, clerical workers, the labor department found in a survey of 4,000 credit unions published today.

About three-fourths of the men seeking loans were married and 85 per cent had dependents, while only 18 per cent of the women had others depending upon them. The expenses of illness were the most common causes of financial stress, and purchase of fuel, family expenses and accumulation of previous debts were others.

Ferdinand was a weak monarch and never loomed so large as his able queen. Also, he was old. The bearded prince was 59 years old in 1914 and 72 when he died. Physically, he was not strong during his later years and recently his illness has been such that false reports of his death from intestinal cancer frequently have been printed and believed until denials could be got out of Bucharest.

SUCCUMBS TO MONTHS-LONG DISEASE ATTACK

NEWS OF KING'S DEATH SWEEPS OVER COUNTRY AND NATION MOURNS

NEW REGENTS WILL TAKE THE OATH OF OFFICE THIS AFTERNOON

By ASRA BERKOWITZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Bucharest, July 20.—Ferdinand of Roumania, his body wasted by his months-long fight against the inroads of cancer, died at 2:15 A. M. today in the arms of his wife, Queen Marie.

Two of his children, Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana, were at the bedside almost continually during the last stage of the king's prolonged illness. Prince Carol, who renounced his rights of succession, was reported on a motor trip from Paris.

The monarch's grandson, Crown Prince Michael, son of Carol and Princess Helen of Greece, knelt near the king as death came. In addition to Queen Marie of Roumania, Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia and ex-Queen Elizabeth of Greece also were at the bedside.

News of Ferdinand's death swept over Roumania and at once the nation displayed its mourning crepe.

Order was maintained throughout the country.

All measures were taken for transfer of royal privileges to the regency. The new regents will take their oath of office this afternoon in the following order: Prince Nicholas, Mgr. Niron Cristea, patriarch of Roumania; M. Buzdugan, president of the Court of Cassation.

The fate of Ferdinand of Roumania was to govern a kingdom in the Balkans during the most turbulent and uncertain years of modern history. He came to the throne Oct. 11, 1914, a little more than two months after Europe's armies began moving in the greatest war in history. He was accompanied by the beautiful woman known throughout the world now as Marie of Roumania, an English princess who slipped into the intrigue of southeastern European politics so wholeheartedly that her will finally became one of the determining factors in the Balkans.

Ferdinand succeeded his uncle, King Carol, as King Ferdinand I. Carol had selected his Hohenzollern nephew for the difficult task of governing. Roumania had been established only 36 years when the war began. England, Germany, Russia and France created it in the treaty of 1878. Despite the Hohenzollern blood in Ferdinand's veins, Queen Marie was able to keep Roumania out of the war on the side of the central powers and finally put Roumania in the war on the side of the allies. That was the biggest thing that ever happened to Roumania—entering the war. It won for Marie's country vast new areas carved from Russia, which had gone Bolshevik during hostilities, and Marie was honored for the personal sacrifices and diplomatic ability which enabled her to win new dignity and wealth for Roumania.

"THE KEY TO THE HOUSE OF DAVID" AND "FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY"

STATE SAYS THEY TAUGHT THE PRACTICE OF PERJURY TO DISCIPLES

St. Joseph, Mich., July 20.—(UP)—M. S. Tyler, 81, assumed all responsibility for the two books, "The Key to the House of David," and "For War Purposes Only," which the state in the cult's dissolution hearing contents taught the practice of perjury to the disciples.

"I wrote them both," Tyler, oldest living member of the colony, testified for the defense. "King Ben had nothing to do with them. I wrote and edited them both."

Tyler said he understood the books were distributed but later collected and destroyed because of a typographical error. He vigorously denied the assertion of the state's attorney that the books were instructions in case of investigation.

Tyler followed William Wright, 51, who said "King" Ben had never been surrounded by young girls in Shiloh.

"All the girls working in Shiloh were over 30 years of age," Wright said.

On cross examination, however, Wright admitted that some of the girls were "young and beautiful."

SERIOUS CHARGE BROUGHT AGAINST AN ARMY MAN

MINNEAPOLIS MAN IN GUARD HOUSE AT CAMP DEVINS, MASS.

GIRL FOUND BADLY BEATEN ABOUT HEAD AND UNCONSCIOUS

Camp Devins, Mass., July 20.—(UP)—A 19-year-old Lynn girl was in a critical condition at the Army hospital today and a soldier was in the guard house charged with felonious assault.

The girl, Miss Pearl Agarkis, was found yesterday by two soldiers near a vacant house not far from the camp. She appeared to have been badly beaten about the head and was unconscious.

"Don't tell my mother, Jimmy Farnsworth did it. I love him still," Private James Farnsworth, 22, of Minneapolis, Minn., an instructor at the Citizens Military Training camp, was arrested. An examination of effects by Provost Marshal Lieut. F. M. Flanagan revealed blood-stains on the cuff of a shirt.

Farnsworth's story was that about 11 o'clock Monday night the girl, with whom he had been friendly, called for him at the barracks. He sent word that he was in bed but got up after Miss Agarkis had returned word that it was imperative she see him.

She told Farnsworth she had been brought to the camp by her employer, a Lynn man. Farnsworth took her to Ayer where he told her to stay at a hotel or take the train home, he said. The soldier said he then returned to camp and went to bed.

Miss Agarkis' told army officers she had been with Farnsworth on the night in question and that he had suddenly attacked her and left her under the vacant house near which she was found.

Major James Stevens, executive officer of the camp, was investigating the case.

ARMY FLIERS RETURN HOME

Dayton, O., July 20.—(UP)—Lieutenants Lester Maitland and Albert Hegenberg came home to the air service at McCook Field today from their trans-Pacific flight to Hawaii.

The two aviators who not many weeks ago took off secretly from McCook Field on the first leg of their historic adventure, arrived from Chicago shortly before 3 o'clock in a giant Fokker plane.

Dense crowds which gathered to welcome the fliers to their home field were held in check by police lines as the plane came to rest safely at McCook Field.

'PEACE BRIDGE' BREWERY PLANNED

SCHOOL TEACHER PLANS TO FLY TO HAWAII

"I WANT TO DO SOMETHING DIFFERENT," SAYS MISS MILDRED DORAN

WANTS TO BE FIRST WOMAN TO FLY TO HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Long Beach, Cal., July 20.—(UP)—"I desire to do something different," and "to be the first woman to do it" is the chief motive behind the proposed Hawaiian flight of Miss Mildred Doran, 22-year-old school teacher of Flint, Mich., she said today.

Miss Doran, with her pilot, Augie Pedlar, and her financial backer, William F. Malloska, arrived here late yesterday in the biplane in which she hopes to make the flight.

They arrived in a little less than three hours from Tucson, Ariz., the last stop on their flight from Flint to Long Beach.

"I really have no desire to enter the movies," Miss Doran said, but she would like to win the $25,000 Dole prize for a non-stop flight to Hawaii, she added.

"Our plane is perfect and I think it will be the fastest one in the race. It has a cruising speed of 120 miles an hour, so I think we should be first across."

"We will be the first off on August 12," she added. August 12 is the date contestants for the Dole prize are to start.

"Even if Augie and I don't pick up first money, I will be the first woman ever to make a trip like that."

"I really am tickled to pieces to be here," she said, "and I haven't the slightest misgivings about the coming jaunt to Hawaii."

FIREMEN AND GIRL PHONE OPERATORS BORROWING MONEY

Washington, July 20.—(UP)—Firemen and girl telephone operators stand at the top among borrowers of money.

Along with them, among the men, are clerical workers, skilled artisans, and unskilled workers, and among the women, clerical workers, the labor department found in a survey of 4,000 credit unions published today.

About three-fourths of the men seeking loans were married and 85 per cent had dependents, while only 18 per cent of the women had others depending upon them. The expenses of illness were the most common causes of financial stress, and purchase of fuel, family expenses and accumulation of previous debts were others.

Along with them, among the men, are clerical workers, skilled artisans, and unskilled workers, and among the women, clerical workers, the labor department found in a survey of 4,000 credit unions published today.

NEW YORK CENTRAL SEEKS TO ISSUE CAPITAL STOCK

Washington, July 20.—(UP)—The New York Central railroad applied today for authority to issue $38,325,000 capital stock.

Stockholders, the application said, will be given the right to subscribe at par to the amount of 10 per cent of their holdings as of August 10, 1927, and such stock as is not subscribed for in this way will be sold at not less than par.

The issue, the application explained, is for construction and improvement purposes and to reimburse the road's treasury for expenditures made from income not yet capitalized.

SUCCUMBS TO MONTHS-LONG DISEASE ATTACK

NEWS OF KING'S DEATH SWEEPS OVER COUNTRY AND NATION MOURNS

NEW REGENTS WILL TAKE THE OATH OF OFFICE THIS AFTERNOON

By ASRA BERKOWITZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Bucharest, July 20.—Ferdinand of Roumania, his body wasted by his months-long fight against the inroads of cancer, died at 2:15 A. M. today in the arms of his wife, Queen Marie.

Two of his children, Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana, were at the bedside almost continually during the last stage of the king's prolonged illness. Prince Carol, who renounced his rights of succession, was reported on a motor trip from Paris.

The monarch's grandson, Crown Prince Michael, son of Carol and Princess Helen of Greece, knelt near the king as death came. In addition to Queen Marie of Roumania, Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia and ex-Queen Elizabeth of Greece also were at the bedside.

News of Ferdinand's death swept over Roumania and at once the nation displayed its mourning crepe.

Order was maintained throughout the country.

All measures were taken for transfer of royal privileges to the regency. The new regents will take their oath of office this afternoon in the following order: Prince Nicholas, Mgr. Niron Cristea, patriarch of Roumania; M. Buzdugan, president of the Court of Cassation.

The fate of Ferdinand of Roumania was to govern a kingdom in the Balkans during the most turbulent and uncertain years of modern history. He came to the throne Oct. 11, 1914, a little more than two months after Europe's armies began moving in the greatest war in history. He was accompanied by the beautiful woman known throughout the world now as Marie of Roumania, an English princess who slipped into the intrigue of southeastern European politics so wholeheartedly that her will finally became one of the determining factors in the Balkans.

Ferdinand succeeded his uncle, King Carol, as King Ferdinand I. Carol had selected his Hohenzollern nephew for the difficult task of governing. Roumania had been established only 36 years when the war began. England, Germany, Russia and France created it in the treaty of 1878. Despite the Hohenzollern blood in Ferdinand's veins, Queen Marie was able to keep Roumania out of the war on the side of the central powers and finally put Roumania in the war on the side of the allies. That was the biggest thing that ever happened to Roumania—entering the war. It won for Marie's country vast new areas carved from Russia, which had gone Bolshevik during hostilities, and Marie was honored for the personal sacrifices and diplomatic ability which enabled her to win new dignity and wealth for Roumania.

Ferdinand was a weak monarch and never loomed so large as his able queen. Also, he was old. The bearded prince was 59 years old in 1914 and 72 when he died. Physically, he was not strong during his later years and recently his illness has been such that false reports of his death from intestinal cancer frequently have been printed and believed until denials could be got out of Bucharest.

Marie was 10 years Ferdinand's junior and had the further advantage of a mind that kept her young despite advancing years. The marriage could scarcely have been termed a love match.

Domestic difficulty probably hastened Ferdinand's death. In November, 1925, his eldest son, Carol, heir to the throne and father of a 4-year-old son, went to London to represent the Roumanian court at the funeral of the late Queen Mother Alexandra. Carol did not return. He was found several weeks later at Milan, Italy, accompanied by Mme. Magda Lupescu, with whom he since lived.

Numerous reasons for Carol's

HEDDA HOYT TELLS—ABOUT HEEL PROTECTORS

By HEDDA HOYT

New York, July 20.—(UP)—Women who drive automobiles will be interested in the new 'heel protectors' for drivers. The woman driver finds that the high heels of her shoes become scuffed when she drives and for this reason a leather heel protector has been designed and is now on the market.

These heel protectors are merely little heel-shaped pieces of leather with anklet attachments. The leather protector fits snugly over the shoe heel being held firmly by a heel strap as well as by an ankle strap. Models are shown in both brown leather and black patent. There are two kinds of anklet attachments, one being a narrow strap of leather with a tiny buckle clasp and the other being a metal slip-on anklet similar to those formerly worn by men bicyclists.

Some women drivers wear mudguards which were worn upon the streets this Spring as a protection for the shoe and hosiery. These are made of rubberized cloth and look like half of a galosh since they appear at the back of the foot only. They are not as satisfactory for driving purposes as are the regular leather heel protectors designed for driving.

Two-Toned Stockings—

It seems that much emphasis is being placed upon heels this season. Stockings with contrasting heels have become so universally accepted that almost every one wear them. The gunmetal stocking with black square heel is very well liked for streetwear. Parchment-toned stockings with light brown heels are also popular. For sportswear, white stockings with colored heels are having quite a vogue. For instance, white stockings with black heels are often worn with the black and white sports costume. We have seen heels of pastel shade on white or nude

CAT WINS TECHNICAL VICTORY OVER FIERCE
RATTLE SNAKE

San Antonio, Tex., July 20.—(UP)—With a technical victory won over a rattle snake here, a cat has acquired more publicity than if it had spent all its nine lives in back fence arguments.

It was the first time recorded here that a cat has shown a disposition to battle the dangerous reptile.

Lee Johnson, investigator in the district attorney's office, tells the story, he being a witness to the battle which lasted an hour without either adversary striking a blow that landed, until the snake gave up from exhaustion. It was so tired that repeated playful taps with the cat's paw failed to arouse it, when Johnson killed it with a stick.

During the combat the snake coiled and uncoiled, assaulted and retreated, while the cat leaped to the attack and dodged its adversary's strikes, according to Johnson.

CAT WINS TECHNICAL VICTORY OVER FIERCE RATTLE SNAKE

San Antonio, Tex., July 20.—(UP)—With a technical victory won over a rattle snake here, a cat has acquired more publicity than it had spent all its nine lives in back fence arguments.

It was the first time recorded here that a cat has shown a disposition to battle the dangerous reptile.

Lee Johnson, investigator in the district attorney's office, tells the story, he being a witness to the battle which lasted an hour without either adversary striking a blow that landed, until the snake gave up from exhaustion. It was so tired that repeated playful taps with the cat's paw failed to arouse it, when Johnson killed it with a stick.

During the combat the snake coiled and uncoiled, assaulted and retreated, while the cat leaped to the attack and dodged its adversary's strikes, according to Johnson.

MARINES TO DRIVE OUT GEN. SANDINO

LIBERAL LEADER LED ATTACK ON GARRISON AT OCOTAL

ASSIGNMENT MAY PROVE DIFFI-CULT AND HAZARDOUS
ONE

Managua, Nicaragua, July 20. — (UP)—With a column of 250 marines and constabulary, Major Oliver Folyd of the U. S. marines was proceeding today from Estelli with orders to capture or drive out of the country General Sandino, liberal military leader, who led the attack on the garrison of marines and constabulary at Ocotal.

The assignment may prove difficult and hazardous. The field of operations is over a rugged, mountainous district whose roads and trails are at this time almost impassable because of heavy rains.

The country lends itself to ambush fighting, necessitating the greatest precautions before advancing. It is a strange country for the marines, but the Nicaraguan constabulary will be of aid in overcoming the handicap.

The government of Honduras was understood to be co-operating with the marines. It has stationed a thousand men along the frontier with orders to capture the Nicaraguan general if he crosses the border, it was reported here today.

Brig. Gen. Logan Feland, in command of the U. S. forces in Nicaragua, has sent a dispatch to Washington citing Major Ross E. Rowell, of the aviation force, for the distinguished service medal. Ross was in charge of the five American planes which bombed Sandino's forces at Ocotal during last Saturday's battle.

"Throughout his duty in Nicaragua," the citation read, "he (Major Rowell) has worked unceasingly, has maintained the material of his squadron in the best order under trying conditions, and has inspired in his officers and men the most intense devotion."

"Day in and day out they have proved ready to execute all the many commissions required of them. As supreme proof, Major Rowell, when notified by his patrol on July 16, 1927, that the garrison at Ocotal, over 100 miles away, was in danger, at once took the air, leading five planes in the teeth of a tropical storm.

"At Ocotal he led the planes to the attack with the highest tactical skill and distinguished courage. He broke the masses of the enemy, destroyed the greater part of them, and drove the remainder from the field. Major Rowell saved the garrison from great loss of life and almost certain destruction."

Three airplanes manned by marines returned here late yesterday from Ocotal. They reported that Captain Gilbert D. Hatfield, in charge of the garrison of marines and constabulary at Ocotal, had the situation well in hand with the garrison in good shape.

They brought back reports from natives at Ocotal that Sandino's thinned out troops were deserting him and returning to their homes.

General Moncada, leader of the liberal forces before the American ultimatum ordering the liberals to lay down their arms, replied yesterday to a communication from the United States asking him to answer to the charge that Nicaraguans were being massacred by marines.

"Sandino was the only general who refused to lay down his arms and request his followers to return to peaceful occupations," Moncada said. "He preferred, however, to enlist a band of robbers and assassins and committed crimes of all nature."

"Sandino is entirely responsible for the attack on Ocotal, believing he could annihilate the small garrison. The garrison had to defend itself as best it could."

"I am entirely satisfied with the progress this country is making toward peace. Crime is decreasing each day, assassinations are fewer, and I am entirely in accord with the method of securing peace."

Carlos Cuadra Pasos, minister of foreign relations of the Diaz conservative government, issued a statement yesterday commenting on the remarks of Salomon De La Selva before the Pan-American Labor Federation at Washington. The latter criticized the U. S. government for the marine aviators' bombing attack at Ocotal.

"Selva is not a true representative of Nicaraguan labor," Pasos said. "Selva has been absent from Nicaragua since his childhood and has no official labor connection or any other in this republic."

"Here there is no true federation of labor because there does not exist any labor problem as in industrial countries."

"The people in general of Nicaragua approve thoroughly of the conduct of the American marines, and the press of all parties in Nicaragua praise the activity of the marines in their work of restoring order and guarantee of life and property, and have censured severely the criminal activity of Sandino."

SMITH AND BRONTE TO RETURN TO THE UNITED STATES

Honolulu, T. H., July 20. — (UP)—Ernest Smith and Emory Bronte, the civilian trans-Pacific flyers, today began preparations to return to the United States.

The aviators have made arrangements to sail for San Francisco next Friday aboard the steamer President Jefferson. They already have purchased tickets for the trip from the Dollar Line steamship office.

By sailing on Friday instead of later as they had planned previously, the flyers said they hope to satisfy those on the mainland who are anxious for them to return, and still have ample time to participate in the series of entertainments Honolulu civic organizations have arranged for them.

Their friends on the Pacific coast will have an opportunity to hear them over radio tonight, it was announced.

Smith, Bronte, and James Dole, donor of the $35,000 prize money for trans-Pacific flights, will broadcast from radio station KGU starting at 9 P. M. Honolulu time, or 11:30 P. M. Pacific coast time.

Station KGU is operated by the Honolulu Advertiser, on 270 meters and 1110 kilocycles. It is a 500 watt station.

"Rosie" Tough on Clara!

When "Rough House Rosie" now showing at the Lyceum theatre was being filmed, it gave Clara Bow, its cyclonic little star, the most strenuous five weeks of her life.

In the first place, she received what is vulgarly known as a "good sock in the jaw" on the opening day of production. It happened at the beach when Reed Howes, her leading man, was demonstrating his strength at a striking machine. Swinging the iron sledge with one hand, it came down on the thick rubber disk and rebounded, striking Clara a severe blow. Although painfully hurt she refused the attentions of an alarmed physician and went ahead with the scene.

FORESTRY AS A PROFESSION

ALTHOUGH forestry has only gained recognition as a profession within the last 30 years, today there are more than 1,500 young men in the United States studying for foresters' careers, and forestry is a recognized profession charged with the solution of what is perhaps the country's greatest economic problem, that of putting to the best use 470,000,000 acres of forest land.

The requirements, opportunities and ideals of the forester's profession have been set forth by Edward A. Sherman, Associate Forester of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, in a new bulletin just off the Government's presses, entitled "Forestry as a Profession."

The first recognition given the idea that forestry work required special technical training was in 1898, when Cornell University established a professional school of forestry, and to Mr. Sherman. Since that time 23 institutions have included courses leading to a degree in forestry, and 50 others now include forestry in their curricula.

The competent forester must be physically capable of a rigorous life in the woods, says Mr. Sherman, as spending a considerable portion of one's time in the woods, with few comforts and frequent hardships, as a part of one's regular business is quite different from camping out for a few weeks on a vacation. Many are attracted to the profession because of its possibilities of outdoor life without realizing the strenuous nature of the field work. The nature of the forester's work, the bulletin states, moreover calls for technical training as well as business and executive ability. The forester is called upon to administer timber-lands, devising methods of fire protection, the best methods of lumbering, and dealing with the problem of utilization of the forest without impairing its permanency in timber production. He must know how to appraise timber and utilize it as well as how to grow it, and he must be able to manage and develop the property in his case so as to make it yield increasingly heavy returns at lower cost.

Opportunities for employment of trained professional foresters are constantly increasing, according to the bulletin. The Federal Government, the States, counties and municipalities, many lumber companies and private owners of timberland, wood-using industries, educational institutions and organizations conducting research in forestry all employ technical foresters. With the aid of the Government and the States under the provisions of the Clarke-McNary Act, reforestation by private owners is steadily assuming increasing importance.

A PLETHORA OF LAWS

"AMERICA may deserve the name of being the most lawless nation," says the St. Paul Pioneer Press editorially, "but if we are the most lawless we are also the most law-ridden people on earth. Glimpse this recent statement by a district judge in Pennsylvania, as reported in the Golden Book:

"In the United States one may fairly assume that 50,000,000 crimes are being committed, and if these were all prosecuted for punishment, as of course they should be under any enlightened theory of enforcement, over half of our Federal population would be confined in jail and the other half engaged in getting them there. . . . Thus the law is fast developing into a self-devouring monster."

Says former Governor Stanley of Kentucky:

"Do you realize the number of laws you are called upon to understand and obey? Why, Congress in one hour will pass more laws than all of the parliaments of Europe will in one year. . . . They are trying to regulate every form of human activity, from the setting of a hen to the burial of a horse. There is nothing that is not supervised—horse racing, movies, personal relations—nothing escapes."

Governor Moore of New Jersey points out that every citizen, in order to acquaint himself with all the laws of the country, would have to read the statute books steadily for eight years and four months, reading eight hours a day, including Sundays and holidays.

HAND SHAKING

WHY is it that every high-powered salesman throws out his chest where the third vest button begins, grabs your hand with all the grip and ardor of a drowning man, and then proceeds to unburden himself of his well-drilled lecture.

The average man can withstand all this attack, but why give him such an awful grip and wrench of the hand. Hand shaking may well be carried to excess. No picture of the movies is complete without several yards of hand shaking.

The President of the United States long since set a limit to the amount of hand shaking permissible. Where it was carried to excess the Chief Executive went around next day with his arm bandaged and in splints, while the smell of arnica and Sloan's liniment flavored the atmosphere of the White House.

We believe in a mild kind of a hand shake. The day is long past when it is necessary to gauge a man's ability or his personality by the hand shake he may grip on your phalanges.

Nowadays you can size up a man by looking him in the eye. Our bankers do that, but sometimes they fail in their estimates when the man wanting a loan has a glass eye and turns that optic on the unsuspecting financier.

Holding hands, however, as carried on by our youthful turtle doves, is another proposition and is not to be confused with shaking hands.

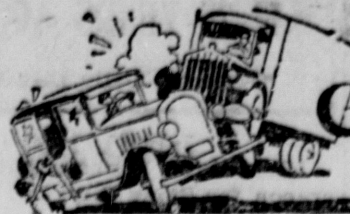

BIBLE STUDY URGED AS NEED OF THE DAY

BIBLE study was urged as the "crying need of our time" at the Lutheran Walther League convention held at St. Louis by the Rev. P. G. Prokopy of Chicago in the report of the Bible committee.

"As the Bible was ever the need of the ages," he said, "so the book is the supreme need of this time, when rationalism and atheism are becoming more and more rampant."

"When such hellish battling is going on against the Bible, there is a special need to fortify ourselves with the word of God to counteract this propaganda and the best way to stamp it out is to help spread the word."

What Every Girl Should Know

"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—tender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died seeing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary becomes acquainted with Wally Mason, a young reporter. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married; but Mary disbelieves in love. Wally tells her he loves her. She, troubled, says she does not love him. Coming home, she learns David has killed a girl in an auto accident.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

The white face of Mary hurt young Robert. Her head had slipped into a corner of the high-backed chair, and her eyes were set on something straight ahead. Presently young Robert saw something limp and round tremble in the corner of her eyes, then fall to her cheeks. They came with the precision of sentinels, did the tears, slowly, silently, two by two down the length of her cheeks, to land wherever they would. Young Robert had never seen Mary cry. He howled, as small boys will at the something that is uncommon, weird, the something that carries with it a nameless terror. Young Robert howled, and hung himself headlong upon his sister where she sat, with head making a dizzying burst of color against the soberness of the high-backed chair.

CHAPTER V

The Grahams, as might be gathered from mention of the space they commanded in the daily press, were the elite. Not, understand, of the elite, but they were the elite. There was old B. Jasper Graham, who owned most of the town's real estate, as hard-headed and hard-hearted as

"Can't you understand, mother, isn't you at all?"

old reprobate as had ever driven a close bargain; and Mollie Sumner Graham, a towering white haired grand dame who drove B. Jasper. Then, of course, there was Arthur, who drove them both with silken leashes, and if we must go on, there had been Bernice, Arthur's fiancée, who had driven him. A right merry merry-go-round, with Arthur, perhaps, crack driver. Not by virtue of his expert handling of the reins, but because of the fortuitous vantage ground in which fate had placed him. Arthur had been the center of what little affection there had simmered in the family and had learned at an early age to leap the shafts of love that radiated toward him, securing and holding the trench of the foe—the hearts of old B. Jasper and Mollie Graham. And, holding the trench, he directed their destinies with all the suavity and careless ease of a Napoleon, peering but to lift his forefinger to have his subjects shout with fervor, "Vive L'Empereur!"

Be it mentioned to the credit of Arthur that the air of obedience which usually surrounds the potentate, did not go to his head. He had developed into a staid, sober young man, somewhat weary with the parade of the world—that section of it with which he came into contact by reason of his affluence—a weariness which he tried to abate by a somewhat belated, albeit sincere interest in what he called "the hard actualities."

Bernice had formed part of that interest. Bernice had indeed been a "hard actuality." She was neither part nor parcel of England's nobility, despite the relish with which the press had pounced upon that part of her ancestry that had boasted of titled English blood.

As a matter of fact she had been born in Vermont, though all of her schooling and most of her life had possessed the graciousness of an English background. Arthur Graham had been considered as good a means as any to re-establish the family purse upon its former plane of sleek and well-filled felicity, and thus their engagement. Bernice very graciously consented to be loved, and Arthur had enjoyed the role of servitor as something rare. Whether or not this congenial state would have continued had Bernice lived, is difficult to foretell. Mollie Graham had grumbled at the advent of this suave usurper of the throne and old B. Jasper had chuckled. He had termed Bernice "a high-reared filly" and had assured Arthur that she would spend his money well. "That, at least, will relieve me of my burden," Arthur had responded dryly. He had hoped for children with Bernice. Nice tow-headed youngsters with long legs and piping voices. Whether or not his hopes would have been realized—that, too, is difficult to foretell.

It was at this precipitous stage of events that David's meat truck had lumbered into view like a heavy-footed uncouth fate, and snatched Bernice from the silkiness of Arthur's limousine, and from his life, leaving him with a minor scratch or two. The newspapers had shrieked their headlines and Mollie Graham had sobbed heavily, demanding to know who was to send the news to England and why need she be thus cursed out of all the world of prospective mothers-in-law? Old B. Jasper stormed and flung high forefingers to heaven, claiming justice. Arthur? He had been left a bit more weary, a bit more dull of eye, and he took to a band of netting for his left arm, which, incidentally, he wore with that careless grace with which he invested all his garments. His mother, fearful of what the neighbors would say, thought there was something not quite decent about the nonchalance with which he invested the crepe. She made no allowance for the nakedness of soul which would have been revealed to the salt gaze of the world had the cover of nonchalance been removed. Mollie Graham didn't make allowance for very much at any time.

Heavy footed, heavy hearted, her efforts to squeeze her conscience into the most fragile of apertures always resulted in chaos for those most intimately concerned, and her cry was that she always did her best and her duty as she saw it. "That's the trouble," old B. Jasper had snorted. "You're so darn near-sighted." At least Bernice saved Arthur from family scenes during the short period of her reign. She had always carried with her the air of royalty, and Mollie and B. Jasper had bent the knee, albeit with much groaning of hinges that hadn't been used since the first days of Jasper's real-estate triumphs in what then had been a raw young town at the edge of a sun-splashed river.

But now Bernice of the regal air was gone, and Arthur was considering leaving Garden City for New York and peace. Mollie wailed. "How can you have peace in New York, Arthur, that is understood to be the noisiest of cities? And how can you have the heart to go, with Bernice hardly cold in the ground and the trial so near? And how can you bear to leave your mother who has had more than her share of the world's trouble, heaven knows, what with one thing and another and Bernice gone and Jasper raising the skies to have that meat-packer sent to the chair, and oh, my heaven, what will my unhappy life be without you?"

"Mother—please don't get worked up again. Your heart."

"He tells me my heart," with dramatic fervor to the room at large. "He tells me my heart, then leaves me with it to win like a stone in my breast!"

"Mother—please!" His teeth came together at that.

"Then tell me you won't go, my dear son."

"I've got to go, mother." And then, in hopes that she might savor a little of the painful recollections that every tree, every curbing in Garden City carried for him, he pleaded, "Can't you understand, mother, can't you at all?"

"I understand nothing, my dear boy, but that you wish to leave your mother. You wish to leave your mother, who has no one but you. You don't count your father, do you, Arthur? You know how he tortures my poor heart that has borne with him these many years—treads on it and tortures it—"

"Mother, please. I'll not go."

At that she wiped her eyes, and sighed. "Thank you, my darling. Thank you. Your poor mother thanks you. Then you will be here for the trial, and you will testify to send that meat-packer to the chair?"

"I couldn't bear to think that he might get off free with my poor, beautiful Bernice hardly cold under ground."

"Don't worry, mother. He won't get off free."

She brightened. "Well, Arthur, certainly not, if you testify." A shudder waited through the corpulence of her frame. "When I think how close you were to death, my darling!"

The third unconsumed cigarette was thrown into the grate. "I've told you repeatedly, mother, that Dave Sullivan was not to blame!"

Are You "Toxic?"

It is Well, Then, to Learn the Importance of Good Elimination.

FUNCTIONAL inactivity of the kidneys permits a retention of waste poisons in the blood. Symptoms of this toxic condition are a dull, languid feeling, drowsy headaches, and, sometimes, toxic backache and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many readers have learned the value of Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, in this condition. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Marks of Malnutrition

An official bulletin of the United States children's bureau in describing symptoms of malnutrition in a child says, "Because of lack of muscular tone his shoulders are usually rounded, the shoulder blades sometimes standing out to such an extent as to produce the deformity known as 'wings.'"

Accident Statistics

German statistics on industrial accidents in 1924 show that women in agricultural work suffer more accidents than those employed in factories. Only 2,600 women were injured in the manufacturing industries, but 10,800 were injured enough on the farm to entitle them to compensation.

FORESTRY AS A PROFESSION

ALTHOUGH forestry has only gained recognition as a profession within the last 30 years, today there are more than 1,500 young men in the United States studying for foresters' careers, and forestry is a recognized profession charged with the solution of what is perhaps the country's greatest economic problem, that of putting to the best use 470,000,000 acres of forest land.

The requirements, opportunities and ideals of the forester's profession have been set forth by Edward A. Sherman, Associate Forester of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, in a new bulletin just off the Government's presses, entitled "Forestry as a Profession."

The first recognition given the idea that forestry work required special technical training was in 1898, when Cornell University established a professional school of forestry, according to Mr. Sherman. Since that time 23 institutions have included courses leading to a degree in forestry, and 50 others now include forestry in their curricula.

The competent forester must be physically capable of a rigorous life in the woods, says Mr. Sherman, as spending a considerable portion of one's time in the woods, with few comforts and frequent hardships, as a part of one's regular business is quite different from camping out for a few weeks on a vacation. Many are attracted to the profession because of its possibilities of outdoor life without realizing the strenuous nature of the field work. The nature of the forester's work, the bulletin states, moreover calls for technical training as well as business and executive ability. The forester is called upon to administer timberlands, devising methods of fire protection, the best methods of lumbering, and dealing with the problem of utilization of the forest without impairing its permanency in timber production. He must know how to appraise timber and utilize it as well as how to grow it, and he must be able to manage and develop the property in his case so as to make it yield increasingly heavy returns at lower cost.

Opportunities for employment of trained professional foresters are constantly increasing, according to the bulletin. The Federal Government, the States, counties and municipalities, many lumber companies and private owners of timberland, wood-using industries, educational institutions and organizations conducting research in forestry all employ technical foresters. With the aid of the Government and the States under the provisions of the Clarke-McNary Act, reforestation by private owners is steadily assuming increasing importance.

A PLETHORA OF LAWS

"AMERICA may deserve the name of being the most lawless nation," says the St. Paul Pioneer Press editorially, "but if we are the most lawless we are also the most law-ridden people on earth. Glimpse this recent statement by a district judge in Pennsylvania, as reported in the Golden Book:

"In the United States one may fairly assume that 50,000,000 crimes are being committed, and if these were all prosecuted for punishment, as of course they should be under any enlightened theory of enforcement, over half of our Federal population would be confined in jail and the other half engaged in getting them there. . . . Thus the law is fast developing into a self-devouring monster."

Says former Governor Stanley of Kentucky:

"Do you realize the number of laws you are called upon to understand and obey? Why, Congress in one hour will pass more laws than all of the parliaments of Europe will in one year. . . . They are trying to regulate every form of human activity, from the setting of a hen to the burial of a horse. There is nothing that is not supervised—horse racing, movies, personal relations—nothing escapes."

Governor Moore of New Jersey points out that every citizen, in order to acquaint himself with all the laws of the country, would have to read the statute books steadily for eight years and four months, reading eight hours a day, including Sundays and holidays.

FUNCTIONAL inactivity of the kidneys permits a retention of waste poisons in the blood. Symptoms of this toxic condition are a dull, languid feeling, drowsy headaches and, sometimes, toxic backache and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. DEMPSEY AND SHARKEY ARE RESTING BEFORE THE BATTLE

HARTNETT FACTOR IN CUBS' RECOVERY

MILLION DOLLAR SHOW AT THE YANKEE STADIUM

SHARKEY FINISHED WORK ON TOP OF MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

DEMPSEY COMES TO NEW YORK FROM WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, July 20.—Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, the principals in another one of Tex Rickard's million dollar shows, billed for the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night, were resting today near the scene of battle.

Sharkey finished his work yesterday in the hot house on the top of Madison Square Garden and Dempsey came in from White Sulphur Springs, where he trained for what he hopes to be his great comeback.

While the trainers of the two fighters were planning to put their charges through the last limbering up exercises, the fatigued clerks in Rickard's office were laboring through a basket full of last order demands for a "seat in the front row."

Rickard was hiding out, after leaving the announcement in his office that he "had been licked by the demand for tickets. Joe Boynton and Benny Bennett, his star men in the box office, were willing to express the opinion that no fight in history had attracted the same demand for tickets and that the gate was sure to be more than a million and a quarter dollars.

Rickard's private office was too busy to figure any definite sum on the advance sales but Al Luce, his business manager, said he was sure they had taken in more than $875,000 and the unserved seats had not been placed on sale yet.

Sharkey was still an eight to five favorite in the betting today. Commissioners who take and place bets predicted that the Boston heavyweight might be better than two to one before they enter the ring. The stories about Dempsey's crippled left arm, which have been grossly exaggerated, has influenced the betting odds considerably.

If there is anything the matter with Dempsey's left arm or his right arm or his left leg or his right leg, this writer is as blind as a bat. Leo Flynn, Dempsey's manager, did say in Saratoga in the presence of the writer that Dempsey's muscles had been sore and that bandages were used on him at night but he certainly did not say that there was anything serious in the soreness.

"If there is anything wrong with that fellow's arms, we're glad of it because he would have ruined us if they were right," Dave Shade and Marty Burke said.

Dempsey reiterated last night that he expected to win in less than four rounds but if the fight had to go the limit he was sure he could win the decision.

"I don't know where they get the idea that I can't go more than a few rounds," Dempsey said. "I went twelve hard rounds against Bill Brennan, and I went fifteen rounds against Tom Gibbons and don't let anyone tell you that Gibbons was a cinch then."

"That stuff about my bad arm is the bunk. I feel just as well now as I did before the Firpo fight and you newspapermen seem to think that that was my best fight."

While there is a lot of Sharkey talk in the air, there hasn't been as much betting as usually can be expected on a big fight. The smart money would like to know how Sharkey is going to fight; the smart money knows how Dempsey will fight because he never has fought any other way.

Sharkey would be a four to one choice if he went out to make a distance fight of it but he's no better than an even money bet if he goes out to slug with the former champion.

Dempsey isn't any hollow shell and he's in good shape and as long as Dempsey is able to stand on his feet he can knock out any heavyweight in the business with one punch. Sharkey is no one punch killer and he has been stopped many more times than Dempsey. If he elects to trade punches with Dempsey he will get the worst of the trade, unless he has some hidden dynamite that he hasn't shown up to this time.

New York, July 20.—Yankee stadium, where such men as Babe Ruth, old Grover Alexander, and youthful Buster Gehrig have won triumph, was dusted up and bore a holiday look today, for tomorrow it will see the wreckage or the triumph of the hopes of Jack Dempsey.

More people than the famous stadium ever held before will pay more money than its box office ever received to crowd into its stands and into the tiers of ringside seats squeezed into its spacious infield. They will see Dempsey try to win back by beating Jack Sharkey, young Lithuanian from Boston, some of the honors he lost the rainy night last September, when Gene Tunney mastered him at Philadelphia.

No fight since Tunney and Dempsey met, and few before, excepting those involving championships, have drawn the public interest which tomorrow's contest had centered upon it. Ticket sales, it was estimated, would pass a million dollars. Eighty thousand people expected to attend. Already there were reports of speculators asking as high as $150 for particularly choice places by the ringside; of $75 paid for seats considered equally as choice; and of slightly less for places a little further back.

KING OF ROUMANIA DIES IN THE ARMS OF HIS WIFE

flight have been put forward. Anyway, with surprising suddenness, it was announced that Carol had written his father renouncing succession to the throne. The Roumanian parliament immediately elevated Carol's son, Prince Michel, to the position of crown prince. The true story behind Carol's flight has not been divulged. It was alleged that he objected to his mother's friendship for Colonel Prince Stirbey and had struck the prince during a quarrel at the palace.

The family troubles of the Roumanian Hohenzollerns acquainted the world of newspaper readers with their names and fame, and Queen Marie decided to visit the United States. She arrived in the autumn of last year for a swing around the circle in which she expected to travel 10,000 miles. The journey was attended with considerable unfavorable publicity and before the trip was completed Ferdinand's illness became acute and his queen was summoned to curtail her visit. Occasionally since Marie returned to Bucharest, Ferdinand has appeared in public. His feebleness was self-evident. A French physician was summoned to Bucharest and the king underwent surgical treatment. Then radium was sent from Brussels and the king was subjected to further treatment.

During the latter part of March Ferdinand became worse and it was announced that he was suffering from grippe. Queen Marie of Yugoslavia left Belgrade and hurried to her father's side. A few days later it was announced that Ferdinand was better. But, it generally was believed that the truth was being censored.

From then, until his death today, he lingered on, but it was known all the while that death was imminent. In the end Ferdinand suffered agonies. His last moments of life were a struggle against suffocation.

He was 72 years old and so weakened that his courageous battle against disease won admiration from many cancer specialists called to treat him. Physicians said that while the cancer itself had not actually grown worse the king's constitution had been so affected his death was expected at any time.

The royal family congregated at Pelisor Castle, Sinaia, as soon as they heard that the king was dying. Science combined with a will to live throughout the last 48 hours. Strychnine injections were used frequently. But at last medicine could do no more and with his children and relatives surrounding him, his wife's arms holding him, Ferdinand died.

Both houses of parliament were in session today, so that immediate formalities connected with inducting the regency into office were assured. The cabinet met at 8 A. M., to discuss funeral arrangements. Queen Marie, accompanied by others of the family and several cabinet members were expected to reach Cotroceni Palace, Bucharest, at 3 P. M.

King Ferdinand's body will be brought to Cotroceni and will lie in state for 48 hours.

It was reported without confirmation that frontier guards had been ordered not to admit Prince Carol in case he should desire to visit Roumania and look upon his father in death. Carol's son Michael, has the legal right to the throne as the son of the oldest son, but meanwhile the regency will take command.

Queen Marie and Premier Ionel Brantianu are looked upon as the leading figures in Roumanian political life, however. The latter, who hitherto has been the power behind the throne, now is in a position to wield a virtually unchallenged dictatorship.

Neuilly, France, July 20.—Prince

Carol, who because of his love for Mme. Magda Lupescu, renounced his right of succession to the Roumanian throne, today learned at his Neuilly villa of the death of his father.

The prince told a friend who visited him shortly after noon that "I am deeply grieved. Despite all the troubles I had with my family, I always bore for my father a profound filial affection."

The friend also quoted Carol as saying, "I am not thinking of returning to Bucharest at the moment."

CHAUFFEUR WHO MARRIED OPERA STAR NOW IN JAIL

San Francisco, July 20.—(UP)—Floyd Glatzback, the chauffeur who gained prominence five years ago by his marriage to Mme. Marguerite Matzenauer, grand opera star, was in jail here today in default of $5,000 bail on charges of forgery.

Glatzback was arrested on the request of Portland police. Mrs. R. D. Inman, Portland widow, complained that he signed her name to a check for $5,000 and cashed it at a San Francisco bank five months ago. "I didn't think she would go that far," Glatzback said. "It's an old case and I thought it had been settled some months ago."

Mrs. Inman had employed Glatzback as a chauffeur after making a transcontinental trip. Glatzback left his job with Mrs. Inman and came to San Francisco where he has lived since February 19.

Glatzback first became the subject of newspaper headlines in 1921 when as Mme. Matzenauer's chauffeur he was married to her in Carlsbad, Germany after a courtship at Del Monte. After the wedding Mme. Matzenauer declared Glatzback was the "perfect man."

Later, however, Glatzback returned to the United States with the announcement that he was "disillusioned." The romance, he said, was too tempestuous. Following a divorce he made an effort at pugilism and then the movies. Soon he returned to chauffeuring. Glatzback has been disillusioned once again, he said following his arrest.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS RECUPERATE FROM PHYSICAL EXHAUSTION

Estes Park, Colo., July 20.—(UP)—Recuperating here from physical exhaustion sustained when they were compelled to spend a night on the east face of Longs Peak on a narrow ledge, Hugh Morrison, 19, and Earl Cole, 18, of Altoona, Ia., were agreed that as mountain climbers they are proficient harvest hands. "Never again," the amateur climbers said, "We'll get out in the future from movies and stories. The harvest fields are much safer."

Accompanied by Logan Fisher, 19, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., the two youths started for the harvest fields from their home when it occurred to one that it would be an adventure to climb up the most dangerous trail on the peak.

Fisher remained a slight distance in the rear of his chums and when they were unable to ascend or descend from a narrow ledge, he returned here and told of their plight. A searching party was organized and they were brought here for treatment.

HORDES OF CRICKETS THREATEN TO DESTROY WIDE GRAIN BELT

Hayden, Colo., July 20.—(UP)—Hordes of crickets threatened to destroy the grain belt of Routt and Moffat counties today.

Farmers and men paid by the county to check the advance of the insects which already have destroyed crops covering a territory five miles wide by 30 miles deep have little hope of success, Farrington Carpenter, county attorney said.

Unless the federal government or the Red Cross intervenes in the invasion with financial aid all grain crops here will be ruined Carpenter declared. The attorney has petitioned the government to use gas bombs in warfare against the pests.

The crickets are crossing the line into Moffat county. Men in the fields have been working day and night to stem the steady advance. Ranchers are making a continual noise by whatever manner available, the most effective method to halt the insects.

Turkeys have been put into the fields without success. After feeding on the crickets for a few days they die. Chickens eat them for a while and then lose their appetite.

A few years ago a similar epidemic destroyed every growing vegetable blade in a large Routt county farm area. The ranchers abandoned their properties, bankrupt, and never have returned.

GENTRY BROS.

CIRCUS COMING

To Exhibit in Brainerd August 2 on 40th Annual Tour

LARGER AND BETTER TODAY

As Many as 40 Acts, Says Advance Man, Take Place at One Time

Gentry Bros. circus, now on its fortieth annual tour, will exhibit rain or shine, in Brainerd on Tuesday, August 2, according to publicity given out by its advance man. Gentry Bros. circus is larger and better today than ever before. Another section has been added to the train and many new and beautiful tableaux wagons have been added to the spectacular street parade which will be given on the down town streets at noon.

Modoc, the largest elephant in captivity, is the leader of the Gentry Bros. great herd of performing elephants. Modoc does the Charleston and the black bottom to the delight of juveniles and the "older boys and girls" too. Camels, tigers, lions, leopards, zebras, monkeys, and rare and curious animals from the far parts of the earth will also be on exhibit.

The Gentry Bros. have always made it a custom to offer an entirely new program each season, and this season is no exception. They have spared no expense in order to secure the most talented artists in this country and Europe. As many as 40 acts take place under the big top at one time. MOST FASCINATING PAIR OF LEGS IN BIRMINGHAM

New York, July 20.—(UP)—The most fascinating pair of legs in the United States may be twinkling, unsmiling, in Birmingham, Ala., today, all because their fair owner couldn't come to New York to show them to the world.

The legs are owned by Miss Eva Briggs, a Birmingham girl, who was a heavy favorite with the board of elimination for the annual beautiful leg contest of the National Hosiery and Underwear Exposition, now in session at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

The hundreds of girls from every part of the country whose photographs were entered for the contest were eliminated to the score who were invited to New York for a personal appearance in the finals. All came except Miss Briggs.

The other 19 were inspected by the board of judges yesterday. Nineteen pairs of shapely, silken-clad calves, with dimpled knees peeping shyly from under upraised skirts, were paraded before the four judges, experts in art, and underwear.

It was decided, after heated debate, that Miss Gladys Turner, a Broadway show girl whose home is in Orange, N. J., had the best of those present. But there was many a sigh for the absent Miss Briggs. All the judges had inspected photographs of her twin attractions and there was no argument.

However, Miss Turner won, and on the following ground:

Ankle, 9 inches; calf, 14 inches; knee, 14 1/2 inches; thigh, 20 1/2 inches. It was a deadlock for a long time between her and Miss Leona Newell, of Atlanta, Ga., who had the following argument in her favor:

Ankle, 9; calf, 14; knee, 15; thigh, 20 1/2.

Except for the half-inch at the knee, no two pairs of legs could scarcely be more alike and nobody but a leg contest judge could tell any difference at all.

But to a leg expert, a leg speaks for itself in a language only a true lover of legs can understand. As Harry Klemfuss, secretary of the exposition and one of the judges, explained it:

"There are legs and legs. They may look alike to the average person, but they may be a world apart. A real leg has personality, distinction—what Elinor Glynn calls 'it.' They actually speak to you, and you can tell the owner's personality without looking higher.

So there it stands. The judges felt that, despite the perfect measurements of Miss Briggs, that they could not in justice proclaim her the winner without a personal inspection. However, she was awarded a silver cup, which will be sent to her.

Her measurements, by the way, are: Ankle, 7 1/2; calf, 13; knees, 13; thigh, 20.

ONLY 7 NATIONAL BANKS DECLINE TO PAY STATE TAXES

St. Paul, July 20.—(UP)—Only seven National Banks in Minnesota have declined to pay state taxes for the next two years, J. G. Armon, member of the state tax commission, announced today.

State taxes on National banks were held illegal under a decision of the federal supreme court. An agreement with bankers, however, resulted in passage by the last legislature of a bill providing that no public moneys would be placed in National banks that do not agree to pay the state tax for this year and 1928.

Two hundred and sixty-four banks have agreed to pay the taxes. One National bank is now in process of voluntary liquidation.

July 15 was the final day for filing the notices that the state taxes would be paid.

SINCLAIR LEWIS STUDIES JUDICIAL SYSTEM IN AUSTRIA

Vienna, July 20.—(UP)—Sinclair Lewis, the American novelist, came here recently to study the Austrian judicial system. He may learn of it at first hand.

Lewis obtained from a photographer some pictures of last week's riots which were supposed to be exclusive. The novelist soon learned that the same pictures had been sold to other persons.

A dispute resulted over payment. The photographer swore out a warrant for Lewis' arrest and the novelist is expected to retaliate by bringing suit on a charge of fraud.

SOUGHT WRITS OF HABEAS CORPUS, ORDERED QUASHED

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(UP)—Writs of habeas corpus to prevent extradition of Roy Rodgers, Patrick Hanley, Roy Shea and P. T. Driscoll to Huron, S. D., for bank robbery, were ordered quashed late Tuesday by Judge John W. Boerner in district court here.

The decision followed Rogers' hearing in which alibis were presented to show that the defendant was at a Wisconsin summer resort at the time of the Huron holdup in which about $15,000 was obtained from the Farmers' and Merchants Bank.

Hearings for the other three men were held a week ago.

Attorneys for Shea, Driscoll and Hanley indicated today they would not appeal from the court's decision.

The writs were obtained following the granting of extradition requests of South Dakota authorities by Governor Theodore Christianson.

'LEFTY' O'CONNOR PROVES SELF A GOOD COW HAND

Chicago, July 20.—(UP)—"Lefty" O'Connor never lived on a cow ranch—but Patrolman O'Connor proved himself a good cow hand today.

A good sized steer, sighting freedom, wandered out of the stock yards and meandered through a residential district. Citizens ran. The steer kicked over a couple of push carts, knocked down a woman, then started running down the street.

A number of Chicago's city bred policemen started out without having the slightest idea of what to do with a wandering steer. One of them fired his pistol and part of the steer's tail was clipped off.

O'Connor appeared on the scene. He had no lasso. Therefore he shot the steer in the heart and the temporary reign of terror was ended.

IDEAL BASEBALL WEATHER GREETS YANKEE TEAM

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(UP)—Ideal baseball weather greeted the New York Yankees when they arrived here today for an exhibition game with the St. Paul American Association team.

Cloudy weather with probable showers was predicted by weather forecasters but the sun crept out early to cheer thousands of Twin City fans who will visit Lexington ball park this afternoon.

Tickets were at a premium Tuesday and the greatest crowd in St. Paul baseball history is expected when the Yanks start pounding the ball about the local diamond.

Military Preparedness and Aftermath of Wars is Expensive

Washington, July 20.—(UP)—Military preparedness and the aftermath costs of wars were the principal items in the government's expenses of more than $3,500,000,000 in the last fiscal year, treasury statistics disclosed today.

War department expenditures totaled $360,808,776.71, and the navy upkeep was $318,909,096.28.

Veterans' bureau expenses were $391,470,413.72.

Interest on the public debt, which was largely caused by wars, amounted to $1,857,858,563.29, while $513,554,519.40 from surplus receipts were used in debt reduction.

The veterans' bureau also expended $115,219,352.20 for administration of the adjusted service compensation act.

CONGRESSMAN'S DAUGHTER-IN-LAW DIES AT ROCHESTER

Norfolk, Neb., July 20.—(UP)—Congressman Edgar Howard, upon his return here from Nebraska, where he was called to inspect the encroachment of the Missouri river on city property, was notified by telephone that his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Findley Howard of Guatemala City, Guatemala died this morning at Rochester, Minn. She had undergone an operation for internal cancer.

Congressman Howard may go to Rochester.

Findley Howard is legal adviser to the Guatemalan government.

DIED OF INJURIES RECEIVED WHILE DIVING AT FARIBAULT

Faribault, Minn., July 20.—(UP)—Edward Shipman, 20, Beloit, Wis., died at 1:30 p. m. today of injuries received Tuesday when he struck his head while diving into shallow water in the river near here. His body was paralyzed by the shock of the impact of his head against the bottom of the river. He had been visiting relatives here. His body will be taken to Beloit.

2 ALLEGED RADICALS ON FOURTH DAY OF HUNGER STRIKE

Boston, July 20.—(UP)—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti today started the fourth day of their hunger strike.

Although the two men under sentence of death have had no solid food since early Sunday, both left untouched the regular prison breakfast. As at each previous mealtime since the beginning of their fast, however, Vanzetti drank a small quantity of coffee.

Warden William Hendry of Charlestown state prison, where the men are waiting death in the electric chair next month, has considered no plans for forced feeding. Indications were that it would not be resorted to except as an extreme emergency measure.

Sacco and Vanzetti are hunger striking supposedly in protest against Governor Alvan T. Fuller's "secret" review of their case.

REVIVALIST LEAVES ALTON; CAMPAIGN IS UNFINISHED

Alton, Ill., July 20.—(UP)—Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, left for Chicago today with her scheduled 19 day revival campaign only one third finished.

Mrs. McPherson explained that urgent business at her Los Angeles tabernacle made immediate return necessary. She may use an airplane for the trip from Chicago home.

Falling off of the attendance at her meetings was regarded here as one of the reasons for Mrs. McPherson's decision to discontinue the revival. Receipts were small at the six meetings she conducted.

IDEA OF STEAMBOAT BELONGED TO FITCH

Belated Honors Paid to Unfortunate Inventor.

In the little town of Bardonia, Ky., a monument was unveiled on May 25 to John Fitch, recognizing him as the inventor of the steamboat.

It was at Bardonia that "poor John Fitch," discouraged by his failure both in this country and in France to get supporters for his invention, committed suicide. That was on July 2, 1798. A long time between that date and May 25, 1927!

The payment of these belated honors may or may not help to rest John Fitch's soul. However, with the unveiling over Fitch's burial place of the monument provided for by appropriation of congress, the right of Fitch to the title of inventor of the steamboat may be considered fixed. What over glory properly belongs to Robert Fulton for practical development of the steamboat need not be diminished by giving to Fitch the share due him for the invention.

John Fitch was born on January 21, 1748, in Windsor, Conn. Following a boyhood of practically no educational opportunities, he went to sea when seventeen. Later he worked as clock-maker, brassfounder and silversmith. In the Revolutionary war he was a gunsmith for the American troops, and with them went through the winter at Valley Forge. After the war he was a surveyor and trader in what was then the West. Then came his return to Pennsylvania, where he settled at Warmistler, near Philadelphia, and produced, in 1785, his first model of a steamboat. Two years later, on the Delaware river at Philadelphia, he made a successful trial trip with a boat 45 feet long, 12-foot beam, and 12-inch cylinder engine. During the summer of 1790 he ran a larger boat, carrying passengers, from Philadelphia to Wilmington. That appears to have been the end of his venture. His backers dropped their support of him. In 1793, despairing of further aid in this country, Fitch went to France. But the French revolution was on. Penniless, he worked his way back, and so to Bardonia, where he ended his tragedy of an unappreciated inventor.

Among Fitch's papers now in the Library of Congress are the plans and specifications of his steamboats. In respect of the old controversy whether the invention was Fulton's or Fitch's, it might be noted that a committee of the New York legislature declared in 1817 that Fulton's steamboat was "in substance the invention patented by John Fitch in 1791."

Improved Sundial

Most sundials are more ornamental than practical, for calculations must generally be made to tell the time accurately with them. An indicator designed by Julius Wengenbuhl, a regent of the University of California, is said to eliminate this objection, registering the hour as closely as a watch and requiring no computation. It is a curved bronze plate so adjusted that it can be set for any latitude. Corrections are worked out with curved lines, and the measurements are indicated for the longest as well as the shortest day. Plans have been made to set replicas of the dial at various places on the university campus, to aid students in reaching their classes on time, and at Mount Hamilton, where astronomers may consult them. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Spelling to Fit News

The value of the alphabet if you apply it to spell words simply instead of using the favorite method, which you see is not followed here, was discussed recently at the twenty-first annual meeting of the simplified spelling board, held in the trustees' room of Columbia university.

The way the board spells words is illustrated scientifically in a pamphlet prepared by filologists of the board, which points out that fish used to be spelt "fysche" and dog used to be spelt "dogge," until etimologists grew hostile to this practice.—New York Herald-Tribune.

Warn of Rock Slides

Rock slides in mountain regions have wrecked so many unwary trains that the Southern Pacific railway has installed a signal system to mark their movements. In regions where slides are most likely to occur the railroad has strung insulated wire connected to block signals located along the right of way. If earth and rocks move down onto the track the wire breaks, the electrical circuit is opened and the special block signals automatically set at "danger" thus stopping all train movements.

MOST FASCINATING PAIR OF LEGS IN BIRMINGHAM

New York, July 20.—(UP)—The most fascinating pair of legs in the United States may be twinkling, unsung, in Birmingham, Ala., today, all because their fair owner couldn't come to New York to show them to the world.

The legs are owned by Miss Era Briggs, a Birmingham girl, who was a heavy favorite with the board of elimination for the annual beautiful leg contest of the National Hosiery and Underwear Exposition, now in session at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

The hundreds of girls from every part of the country whose photographs were entered for the contest were eliminated to the score who were invited to New York for a personal appearance in the finals. All came except Miss Briggs.

The other 19 were inspected by the board of judges yesterday. Nineteen pairs of shapely, silken-clad calves, with dimpled knees peeping shyly from under upraised skirts, were paraded before the four judges, experts in art and underwear.

It was decided, after heated debate, that Miss Gladys Turner, a Broadway show girl whose home is in Orange, N. J., had the best of those present. But there was many a sigh for the absent Miss Briggs. All the judges had inspected photographs of her twin attractions and there was no argument.

However, Miss Turner won, and on the following ground:

Ankle, 9 inches; calf, 14 inches; knee, 14 1/2 inches; thigh, 20 1/2 inches. It was a deadlock for a long time between her and Miss Leona Newell, of Atlanta, Ga., who had the following argument in her favor:

Ankle, 9; calf, 14; knee, 15; thigh, 20 1/2.

Except for the half-inch at the knee, no two pairs of legs could scarcely be more alike and nobody but a leg contest judge could tell any difference at all.

But to a leg expert, a leg speaks for itself in a language only a true lover of legs can understand. As Harry Klemfuss, secretary of the exposition and one of the judges, explained it: "There are legs and legs. They may look alike to the average person, but they may be a world apart. A real leg has personality, distinction—what Elinor Glynn calls 'it.' They actually speak to you, and you can tell the owner's personality without looking higher.

So there it stands. The judges felt that, despite the perfect measurements of Miss Briggs, that they could not in justice proclaim her the winner without a personal inspection. However, she was awarded a silver cup, which will be sent to her.

Her measurements, by the way, are: Ankle, 7 1/2; calf, 13; knees, 13; thigh, 20.

ONLY 7 NATIONAL BANKS DECLINE TO PAY STATE TAXES

St. Paul, July 20.—(UP)—Only seven National Banks in Minnesota have declined to pay state taxes for the next two years, J. G. Armon, member of the state tax commission, announced today.

State taxes on National banks were held illegal under a decision of the federal supreme court. An agreement with bankers, however, resulted in passage by the last legislature of a bill providing that no public moneys would be placed in National banks that do not agree to pay the state tax nor this year and 1928.

Two hundred and sixty-four banks have agreed to pay the taxes. One National bank is now in process of voluntary liquidation.

July 15 was the final day for filing the notices that the state taxes would be paid.

SINCLAIR LEWIS STUDIES JUDICIAL SYSTEM IN AUSTRIA

Vienna, July 20.—(UP)—Sinclair Lewis, the American novelist, came here recently to study the Austrian judicial system. He may learn of it at first hand.

Lewis obtained from a photographer some pictures of last week's riots which were supposed to be exclusive. The novelist soon learned that the same pictures had been sold to other persons.

A dispute resulted over payment. The photographer swore out a warrant for Lewis' arrest and the novelist is expected to retaliate by bringing suit on a charge of fraud.

The victims of the riots were buried today at private funerals to prevent demonstrations. Criminal proceedings have been instituted against 75 persons charged with participating in the rioting, parliament will be convoked next Monday to consider problems raised by the uprising.

SOUGHT WRITS OF HABEAS CORPUS, ORDERED QUASHED

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(UP)—Writs of habeas corpus to prevent extradition of Roy Rodgers, Patrick Hanley, Roy Shea and P. T. Driscoll to Huron, S. D., for bank robbery, were ordered quashed late Tuesday by Judge John W. Boerner in district court here.

The decision followed Rogers' hearing in which alibis were presented to show that the defendant was at a Wisconsin summer resort at the time of the Huron holdup in which about $15,000 was obtained from the Farmers' and Merchants Bank.

Hearings for the other three men were held a week ago.

Attorneys for Shea, Driscoll and Hanley indicated today they would not appeal from the court's decision.

The writs were obtained following the granting of extradition requests of South Dakota authorities by Governor Theodore Christianson.

'LEFTY' O'CONNOR PROVES SELF A GOOD COW HAND

Chicago, July 20.—(UP)—"Lefty" O'Connor never lived on a cow ranch—but Patrolman O'Connor proved himself a good cow hand today.

A good sized steer, sighting freedom, wandered out of the stock yards and meandered through a residential district. Citizens ran. The steer kicked over a couple of push carts, knocked down a woman, then started running down the street.

A number of Chicago's city bred policemen started out without having the slightest idea of what to do with a wandering steer. One of them fired his pistol and part of the steer's tail was clipped off.

O'Connor appeared on the scene. He had no lasso. Therefore he shot the steer in the heart and the temporary reign of terror was ended.

IDEAL BASEBALL WEATHER GREETS YANKEE TEAM

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—(UP)—Ideal baseball weather greeted the New York Yankees when they arrived here today for an exhibition game with the St. Paul American Association team.

Cloudy weather with probable showers was predicted by weather forecasters but the sun crept out early to cheer thousands of Twin City fans who will visit Lexington ball park this afternoon.

Tickets were at a premium Tuesday and the greatest crowd in St. Paul baseball history is expected when the Yanks start pounding the ball about the local diamond.

Military Preparedness and Aftermath of Wars is Expensive

Washington, July 20.—(UP)—Military preparedness and the aftermath costs of wars were the principal items in the government's expenses of more than $3,500,000,000 in the last fiscal year, treasury statistics disclosed today.

War department expenditures totaled $360,808,776.71, and the navy upkeep was $318,909,096.28.

Veterans' bureau expenses were $391,470,413.72.

Interest on the public debt, which was largely caused by wars, amounted to $1,857,858,563.29, while $519,554,519.40 from surplus receipts were used in debt reduction.

The veterans' bureau also expended $115,219,352.20 for administration of the adjusted service compensation act.

CONGRESSMAN'S DAUGHTER-IN-LAW DIES AT ROCHESTER

Norfolk, Neb., July 20.—(UP)—Congressman Edgar Howard, upon his return here from Nebraska, where he was called to inspect the encroachment of the Missouri river on city property, was notified by telephone that his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edith Howard of Guatemala City, Guatemala died this morning at Rochester, Minn. She had undergone an operation for internal goiter.

Congressman Howard may go to Rochester.

Finely Howard is legal adviser to the Guatemalan government.

DIED OF INJURIES RECEIVED WHILE DIVING AT FARIBAULT

Faribault, Minn., July 20.—(UP)—Edward Shipman, 20, Beloit, Wis., died at 1:30 p. m. today of injuries received Tuesday when he struck his head while diving into shallow water in the river near here. His body was paralyzed by the shock of the impact of his head against the bottom of the river. He had been visiting relatives here. His body will be taken to Beloit.

2 ALLEGED RADICALS ON FOURTH DAY OF HUNGER STRIKE

Boston, July 20.—(UP)—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti today started the fourth day of their hunger strike.

Although the two men under sentence of death have had no solid food since early Sunday, both left untouched the regular prison breakfast. As at each previous mealtime since the beginning of their fast, however, Vanzetti, drank a small quantity of coffee.

Warden William Hendry of Charlestown state prison, where the men are waiting death in the electric chair next month, has considered no plans for forced feeding. Indications were that it would not be resorted to except as an extreme emergency measure.

Sacco and Vanzetti are hunger striking supposedly in protest against Governor Alvan T. Fuller's "secret" review of their case.

REVIVALIST LEAVES ALTON; CAMPAIGN IS UNFINISHED

Alton, Ill., July 20.—(UP)—Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, left for Chicago today with her scheduled 19 day revival campaign only one third finished.

Mrs. McPherson explained that urgent business at her Los Angeles tabernacle made immediate return necessary. She may use an airplane for the trip from Chicago home.

Falling off of the attendance at her meetings was regarded here as one of the reasons for Mrs. McPherson's decision to discontinue the revival. Receipts were small at the six meetings she conducted.

IDEA OF STEAMBOAT BELONGED TO FITCH

Belated Honors Paid to Unfortunate Inventor.

In the little town of Bardonia, Ky., a monument was unveiled on May 25 to John Fitch, recognizing him as the inventor of the steamboat.

It was at Bardonia that "poor John Fitch," discouraged by his failure to get in this country and in France to get supporters for his invention, committed suicide. That was on July 2, 1798. A long time between that date and May 25, 1927!

The payment of these belated honors may or may not help to rest John Fitch's soul. However, with the unveiling over Fitch's burial place of the monument provided for by appropriation of congress, the right of Fitch to the title of inventor of the steamboat may be considered fixed. Whatever glory properly belongs to Robert Fulton for practical development of the steamboat need not be diminished by giving to Fitch the share due him for the invention.

John Fitch was born on January 21, 1748, in Windsor, Conn. Following a boyhood of practically no educational opportunities, he went to sea when seventeen. Later he worked as clockmaker, brassfounder and silversmith. In the Revolutionary war he was a gunsmith for the American troops, and with them went through the winter at Valley Forge. After the war he was a surveyor and trader in what was then the West. Then came his return to Pennsylvania, where he settled at Warminster, near Philadelphia, and produced, in 1785, his first model of a steamboat. Two years later, on the Delaware river at Philadelphia, he made a successful trial trip with a boat 45 feet long, 12-foot beam, and 12-inch cylinder engine. During the summer of 1790 he ran a larger boat, carrying passengers, from Philadelphia to Wilmington. That appears to have been the end of his venture. His backers dropped their support of him. In 1793, despairing of further aid in this country, Fitch went to France. But the French revolution was on. Peniless, he worked his way back, and so to Bardonia, where he ended his tragedy of an unappreciated inventor.

Among Fitch's papers now in the Library of Congress are the plans and specifications of his steamboats. In respect of the old controversy whether the invention was Fulton's or Fitch's, it might be noted that a committee of the New York legislature declared in 1817 that Fulton's steamboat was "in substance the invention patented by John Fitch in 1791."

Improved Sundial

Most sundials are more ornamental than practical, for calculations must generally be made to tell the time accurately with them. An indicator designed by Julius Wangelin, a regent of the University of California, is said to eliminate this objection, registering the hour as closely as a watch and requiring no computation. It is a curved bronze plate so adjusted that it can be set for any latitude. Corrections are worked out with curved lines, and the measurements are indicated for the longest as well as the shortest day. Plans have been made to set replicas of the dial at various places on the university campus, to aid students in reaching their classes on time, and at Mount Hamilton, where astronomers may consult them.

Spelling to Fit News

The value of the alphabet if you apply it to spell words simply instead of using the favorite method, which you see is not followed here, was discussed recently at the twenty-first annual meeting of the simplified spelling board, held in the trustees' room of Columbia university.

The way the board spells words is illustrated scientifically in a pamphlet prepared by filologists of the board, which points out that fish used to be spelt "fische" and dog used to be spelt "dogge," until etimologists grew hostile to this practice.—New York Herald-Tribune.

Warn of Rock Slides

Rock slides in mountain regions have wrecked so many unwary trains that the Southern Pacific railway has installed a signal system to mark their movements. In regions where slides are most likely to occur the railroad has strung insulated wire connected to block signals located along the right of way. If earth and rocks move down onto the track the wire breaks, the electrical circuit is opened and the special block signals automatically set at "danger" thus stopping all train movements.

Thrift

Saved money, however little, will help to dry up many a tear—will ward off many sorrows and heart-burnings, which otherwise might prey upon us. Possessed of a little store of capital, a man walks with a lighter step—his heart beats more cheerily. Every man's first duty is to elevate himself.—S. Smiles.

Model Liners Expensive

Some of the model liners shown in windows of the steamship offices cost as much as $20,000.
